

Louis Ashling

Following from the Greenfield Republican Holiday Issue 1902-1903

LOUIS ASHLING.

Ashling is a word to conjure with in the harness world in Greenfield. Louis Ashling has been so long identified with the business of manufacturing collars, saddles, bridles, lines and all the impedimenta of the tractable horse and the sometimes obstreperous mule, that he needs no introduction to anybody within a radius of twenty miles from Greenfield. He is such a good advertiser in the REPUBLICAN and he so clearly and intelligently sets forth through that medium the size and diversity of his stock that we consider it superfluous to say anything of it here. Ever in touch with the latest developments in the trade, Mr. Ashling's ripe experience as a practical harness man enables him to turn out a class of work which for quality, durability and grace is unsurpassed by any manufacturer either at home or abroad.

A fine line of lap robes, whips and everything pertaining to the business is kept in stock at all times.

In the matter of prices Louis Ashling leads. He is satisfied with a reasonable profit, for he knows his customers will not go back on him. Neither does he discriminate—the casual buyer is accorded the same consideration as the regular buyer.

Such are the factors that have contributed to the success of this well known house.